PIONEER ROAD BUILDERS HAD MANY PROBLEMS TO OVERCOME KEEPING HIGHWAYS PASSABLE

It is a far cry from the early machinery used in the construction of roads in Navarro county to the present powerful caterpillar tractors pulling the big graders capable of improving miles per day. There is also as much difference in the manner in which bridges are constructed as in the mode of travel now and a half century or more ago.

In the days of horse, wagon and buggy travel, prior to the era of automobiles, road improvement was unimportant. In the minds of many of the officials and crossings of streams was a major problem in addition to stretches of the roads along the main traveled sectors that became impassable.

Those early pioneer road builders had neither machinery, money, nor the materials that the contractors of today have available, and their abilities were taxed to provide structures that would withstand the high waters in those days.

Waterways, chief deputy sheriff, who was reared in Petty's Chapel, had occasion as a small lad to witness and see many of the road building efforts of a half century ago, and recalling many of the obstacles in road construction, spoke interestingly of those times.

Buy First Grader.
The first grader purchased by Navarro county for road work was in 1888 a half century ago. The late X. Duren was commissioner of road district No. 1. The first machine bought by the county consisted of a 14-inch elevator plow. Twelve horses or mules furnished the pulling power, according to Mr. Hayes, with eight hitched to the front and with four hitched up behind the machine, pulling from an arrangement of equipment but appearing to be pushing this machine. About 1,000 yards was considered a day's task. It was possible to pile up a dump six or eight feet high with this elevator plow. Mr. Hayes said, or higher with an extension to the elevator. This machine worked somewhat like the elevator machines used sometimes now where dirt is carried on an elevator and put into waiting trucks to be hauled out of their banks too often.

After the dump had been put up with the elevator plow, a smoother grader was used and the surface of the road to make it easier to travel. The road crew consisted of four men and they camped out in the vicinity of where they were working. Mr. Hayes recalled that three men operated the road outfit while the fourth was the roustabout who looked after procuring feed and other supplies. Hauled water and food after the camp, etc. The first three machine men, the officer recalled, were S. B. Baker, foreman; J. G. Hayes, father of the officer, who later was foreman; and Chas. Lockhart. The fourth man could not be remembered.

The late John Howell, father of District Judge Wayne R. Howell, was foreman of the road crew as was the late Will Collins.

Bridge Crew.
In addition to the early pioneer road construction crews, Mr. Hayes related, there also was a bridge crew. Ben Morrow, now deceased, a former railroad bridge foreman, was in charge of the construction of a trestle spanning Richland creek. The late John McConnell later was foreman of this crew. The first "snatch block" for driving piling for the trestle construction (bois-d'arc piling was used) was employed in the Richland creek project. A team was used to pull the block to the top of the block pole to be dropped on the head of the piling in driving it into the ground. Prior to that time a well windlass had been utilized for that purpose. The winding of the windlass by hand was an extremely slow process and the use of a team to "snatch" the block up was a revolutionary movement. Machinery hoists the heavy blocks now used in driving timber or concrete piling in bridge construction, or forms are made for the latter and concrete is poured with reinforcing steels.

The first Chambers creek trestle was constructed in 1886, Mr. Hayes continued, following the installation of the first steel span bridges in Navarro county in 1885. In 1887, the greatest overflow on Chambers creek known occurred and swept away the trestle through the bottom as well as the new steel bridge. The bridge and trestle were rebuilt and was raised two feet higher in 1894. Steel bridges were placed on the Hogan crossing on Chambers on the Chaffield-Roane crossing, Rush creek, and Jones and Love bridges spanning Richland creek. These bridges were placed on steel cylinders, filled with concrete. In the early years, Hogan bridge was operated as a toll affair and later was taken over by the county. Several of those bridges are still in use.

Paved With Timber.
Mr. Hayes recalled that at one time the road near Petty's Chapel became so bad following continued rainy seasons and lack of proper drainage systems in the vicinity of the roads that a considerable section was paved with timber. He said that runners were placed across with the road and then the road was floor-ed with strong timbers. When queried relative to the lasting qualities of such a road, Mr. Hayes pointed out that it lasted for years as there was not the large amount of traffic along the roads in that day. The section was in such bad condition that it could not be put into the road for improvement and the wooden pavement was utilized.

Prior to the time of the purchase of the road machine, the road work was done principally with slips, a slow process.
Modern Road Building.
As much progress in road building has been noted as in the mode of travel. Now the county is crossed a number of times with ribbons of concrete highways and lateral roads. Each of the four commissioners have several pieces of modern machinery to pull the graders. Maintainers for lighter work are also employed while bridge repairmen travel in trucks and autos. The state highway department maintains the state and federal highways at an enormous expense while the road and bridge construction and maintenance of the four commissioners exceeds $100,000 annually. In addition to the concrete roads, gravel, oil and other improved types of roads are seen in various sections of the county. There are some sections in creek bottoms where the roads are impassable sometimes, and at the present time high waters have caused heavy losses to bridges in various sections, but with the present equipment and funds available, Navarro county roads are generally maintained exceptionally well when the weather, and from out of their banks too often.

Richland and Chambers creeks, to say nothing of the lesser streams, or Tully river on the eastern boundary of the county, have overflowed more than a score of times since last fall, damaging and in some instances sweeping away large bridges.

The Chambers creek bridge north of Emhouse was damaged extensively by the continued overflows, while a number of creek bridges and approaches on Richland and tributaries have been swept away. Concrete roads through creek bottoms later were constructed to eliminate the damage to the roads as well as prevent the encountering of the ever-present mudholes in the early improved road program started in this county 20-odd years ago when gravel roads were constructed prior to the asphalt and concrete road construction era.

and Waco, but this is what she has to say about it: "Bill's running for governor. I'm not running for first lady." She has made trips to several cities, including Houston, Austin, Dallas, and Fort Worth at the invitation of McCraw headquarters in those cities, and the public has been invited to meet her at receptions.

Wife Campaign Manager
John Wood, candidate for railroad commissioner, appointed his wife his official campaign manager with headquarters at Austin. "I know they can't beat him," she said of her husband.

Mrs. Ralph Yarborough, whose district judge husband is running for attorney general, is spending considerable time writing to friends in advocating his candidacy. Mrs. L. A. Woods, whose husband is a candidate for his fourth term as state superintendent of public instruction, lets Woods do the speaking, but she handles the finances. Mrs. W. E. James, wife of another candidate for the same office, was a teacher or more than 20 years, and is devoting her full time to his campaign.

Mrs. Frank Morris literally climbed on her husband's bandwagon. She is running for his campaign sound auto into an area roped off for the rally and when Morris had finished his speech, she made one. He is running for railroad commissioner.

Several women are running for the legislature. There wasn't a woman in the last legislature.

Hatcher Withdraws.
DALLAS, June 30.—(P)—W. Gregory Hatcher, who was definitely listed as a candidate for railroad commissioner only a few weeks ago, announced yesterday he was withdrawing from the race.

He gave as his primary reason "financial inability to meet the enormously increased costs of making a state race" and said he would communicate with county democratic executive committee chairman, asking the name not be printed on the official ballot.

Hatcher said he would vote for John Wood for commissioner. Mrs. P. D. Renfro of Beaumont is that gubernatorial campaigner's manager and she and her son, Harold, constitute his entire organization, she said. Renfro is besing his hopes for election on traveling "a thousand miles a week and shaking hands with a thousand people a day."

11TH DISTRICT

has continued to deteriorate in the western half of the Panhandle as a result of inadequate moisture. Conditions have improved considerably in the northeastern plains counties. The district's corn crop, although late in many areas, has made generally satisfactory progress, the review says.

Cotton Crop Progresses
Regardless of the commercial reports indicating that the boll weevils, leaf work and flea hoppers are damaging the crop to some extent in a large number of counties in the Gulf coast section, the Texas cotton crop has made generally good progress since the latter part of May, the review says. Although an unusual amount of replanting has been necessary, seeding operations are about completed except in portions of northern and west Texas. Stands are reported fair to good.

Range conditions in most sections of Texas, the review says, are well above the average and prospects for summer pasturage continue favorable. However, there are some areas in northwest, west and south Texas where lack of moisture has retarded growth of range vegetation.

Receipts of an abundant supply of range feed in most sections of Texas, the review says, livestock in the state has fattened rapidly and is in better than average condition. Receipts of sheep at the May market were in record volume in May, but total marketing, which include interstate shipments, were smaller than in May last year. Cash income from sale of principal farm products in the district the first quarter of 1938 was maintained at level 11 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1937, the review says.

The review quoted Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., that the number of commercial failures in the district declined from April to May, but liabilities of defaulting firms rose to the highest level since August, 1935. There were 21 insolvent firms in the month with liabilities of $457,000, compared with 13 failures in May last year owing $84,000.

Val Meeting Planned By Kerens Baptists July 6th

KERENS, June 30.—(Spl.)—Date for the revival meeting to be held at the Baptist church in Kerens, has been changed from July 3 to July 6, it was announced by Ford Ivey, chairman of the board of deacons.

With Rev. M. O. Cheek, pastor, conducting the evening services, and Johnnie Cohen leading the singing and speaking at morning services great things are expected for the twelve full days of revival.

Mr. Cohen is a converted Hebrew from Palestine, who for the last 20 years has gone up and down his Southland preaching the Gospel in sing. He is said by those who know him personally not to have a superior in the singing of religious solos. He also brings forceful and inspiring sermons, and Kerens is indeed fortunate in obtaining the services of one so talented.

News of County Home Demonstration Clubs

White's Chapel Club Old fashioned picnics are much more palatable if served with creole sauce, Miss Clara Rettiger Home Demonstration agent told a group of White's Chapel Home Demonstration club women at the home of Mrs. F. P. McCulston on Wednesday.

Miss Rettiger continued by saying it was much more economical to can an old fowl than to sell them so cheaply. She demonstrated different ways of serving the canned chicken, and gave the following recipe to use with old or strong fowl of any kind.

Creole Sauce
1 pt. canned chicken, 1 pt. tomatoes, 3 sweet peppers, small onion chopped fine, 2 pieces ham chopped fine, 4 tablespoons of flour, 2 tablespoons butter or bacon drippings. Warm chicken, drain, brown meat delicately, cook onion in butter until light yellow then add flour and brown lightly. Pour into this mixture tomatoes which have simmered for 15 minutes. Allow mixture to thicken. Add chopped peppers, ham and chicken. Bring to a boiling point. Add chicken and simmer (not boil) for 15 minutes. Serve inside a border of hot cooked rice on a hot platter. Yum-yum, and is it good! A fine way to use left-over chicken or turkey.

WASHINGTON COUNTY DEMOS WOULD HIKE FILING FEE TEXAS GOVERNORSHIP TO SUM $1,000

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL
AUSTIN, June 30.—(T. H. b.) Washington county democratic executive committee thinks something should be done to prevent publicity seekers, commercial self-advertisers and jokers running for governor in Texas.

It adopted a resolution urging that candidates for governor be required to pay a fee of $1,000 to get their names on the party's primary ballot. The filing fee now is $100.

Although 14 persons actually looked over the money, only 13 names were certified as candidates by the state committee, but this number was believed to be an all-time record. The name of Vernest O. Thompson was withheld by the committee.

Secretary Vann M. Kennedy of the state committee is of the opinion the filing fee should be $250 for state offices.

He believes this amount would keep insincere persons off the ballot and at the same time would provide what he says is needed revenue for committee expenses.

"Nearly everyone can raise $100," he said, "but $250, I believe, would stand off all but bona fide candidates."

In the past, candidates for state office have had to pay as much as $250 and more. That was when the law required them to fill with their own names and pay a fee of $1 to each.

The chief argument advanced against high filing fees is that they bar poor men.

In some foreign countries, officials say, a candidate is required to post a bond of considerable amount. If he does not poll a certain number of votes, he loses the bond.

Rep. R. M. Leath of Henderson stuck his head in the capitol press room the other day to say "What are your opponents saying about you?" someone shouted.

"That I'm a terrible fellow," Leath pondered.

He came into the room.

"If you really want to know," he laughed, "they're saying I came down to Austin for the last legislature and when I went home I had three big automobiles and built a two-story brick house."

"They say no wonder I want to return to Austin," Leath said, "I have two opponents for re-election."

Lieut. Col. Nat S. Perrine of the 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guard, reported to Adj.

tant General Carl Nesbitt recently that while on duty fighting grasshoppers in the Panhandle he saw the "hardest working" WPA worker.

The man had only one arm but despite this handicap was carrying more cottonwood hulls, bran and poison to a mixing machine than a man with two good arms could.

Here is Colonel Perrine's story: "This one-armed man had about six hooks fastened to what we will call a Sam Brown belt on the side where he had no arm. His actions proceeded something as follows:

"First he would fill two half-bushel buckets with cottonwood hulls, pick them up and hang them on his belt. He would walk about fifteen steps, fill two more half-bushel buckets with bran and hang these on his belt. He would then return about 10 steps to a barrel filled with a mixture of water and poison, dip another half bushel bucket into the barrel of poison, lift out the half-bushel of water mixture, and with the water in his one good hand and four buckets hanging to his belt, he would Thence about five steps to the mixing barrel.

"He would set down the water and disengage each of the four buckets. He would then open the barrel and empty the contents of each of the five buckets into it. Then he repeated the operation.

"I suggested to the agent in charge that they move the barrel nearer to the center of the material and that he have the one-armed man rock the barrel and let the two-handed man feed the barrel, and believe it or not, he said that the two-handed man could not carry the five buckets.

"I had no more advice to give." The East Texas field all last year and this year through April has produced approximately one-third of the oil output of the entire state, a report of engineers of the railroad commission shows.

In 1937, the state produced 507,234,236 barrels, while East Texas production was 167,937,057 barrels, or 33.1 per cent of the total.

POSTMASTERS FOR LIFE

Whether the new law putting postmasters under the civil service for life is taking the incumbents all out of politics, or keeping them permanently in politics, is hard to say. This legislation raises the first second and third class postmasters to the official security of the Supreme Court. Such a wholesale freezing of personnel in a great governmental department may not mean efficiency in the long run.

It is a bad thing, of course, to have such offices subject, as they have long been, to political manipulation. But there may not be much increase in efficiency and faithfulness, in the long run, if all these thousands of public servants are removed from the need of keeping up on their toes and giving the best service of which they are capable. And what of the disqualifications of old age that will arise eventually? A natural result would be, in time, the reduction of large numbers of important postmaster-ships to merely nominal service, with the duties of the head men performed by deputies.

Perhaps such fears are needless. As a news commentator observes, if one congress can enact such a law, another congress can repeal it. Thus there might be in the near future a wholesale return of postmaster-ships to old-fashioned, competitive politics. That would hardly be an improvement.

If this comment seems unduly pessimistic, it may be added fairly that, in spite of all the clamor about political meddling in so vital a public service, the post-offices are usually run pretty well, no matter who is running them. When nominal heads are incompetent, there is usually a body of faithful and expert men, working for small pay, who carry on.

A LAND GOOD TO ALL.

Fifty years ago an Italian boy was brought to this country by his family. He died last month in New York City, leaving an interesting bequest. His life savings, amounting to $15,600, he willed to the United States government, because, he said, "the country was good to me."

The money itself is of little importance, although it may be put to some excellent use. The feeling it expresses is very important. It reminds us again of the early hope that this land might be a haven for the oppressed and a place of opportunity for lovers of freedom, independence and industry.

It is sometimes forgotten that we once urged such people to cast their lot with us. Sometimes a few of them have betrayed the hospitality held out to them. On the whole, however, more of the "foreigners" have become true Americans than we realize. Few express their appreciation with bequests of money, but many have given loyalty, service and culture of a high order.

AFFECTIONATE EGGS

The language of love is often intelligible only to the lovers speaking it. That was the case with the fried egg recently wired by a New England swain to his best girl in Montreal. The young man in the story went into the local telegraph office and paid the price of a telegram plus the delivery of one fried egg.

The office in Montreal received the strange order without batting an eye. The "Spend no time and waste no word.

Parading on because I'm dead,
Only yesterday he said.

I would be remembered here
Not by sigh or falling tear,
But some jest that carries cheer.

Now he's gone. And strangely we Stand about the young and old
And his memory we hold

BEEES ON THE ROAD.

It may be that bees are the greatest summer peril on the road. If they do not produce most of the crashes in the open country, they scare an immense number of motorists out of their wits and shake their driving nerve.

One of the latest examples is an accident reported from Salt Lake City. Two girls, one of them driving, grew instantly oblivious to everything else in the world when a bee flew into the car. The insect was doubtless as badly scared as they were, but acted calmly enough. The girls started swarming at it wildly, and the car jumped a curb and sheared off a power-line pole. One of the girls suffered head lacerations and the other had a nervous shock. The bee, recovering his aplomb, calmly flew away.

There isn't any sense in the usual human procedure in such cases, but there's a lot of human nature. Probably the problem will not be solved until wind shields and windows are screened for summer driving. That will keep out the birds and bats, too, which often wreck cars.

VALUE OF ATROCITIES.

An illuminating example of Nazi philosophy, in the realm of warfare, is an article published in Berlin telling how modern war horrors improve the human race. The article is entitled "The Usefulness of Aerial Bombardment From the Point of View of Racial Selection and Social Hygiene."

Here is a typical extract: "The most densely populated sections of the city have to suffer the most. These quarters are inhabited by poor people who haven't been successful in life, the disinherited of the community, which in this way would be rid of them. Furthermore, the explosion of large shells, weighing a ton or more, besides sowing death, cause numerous cases of insanity. The people whose nervous systems are weak can not stand the shock. Thus the bombardment helps us to discover those with unstable nervous systems and to withdraw them from social life. Once these unhealthy people are discovered, the only thing left to do is to sterilize their descendants, which will insure the selection of the race."

Those who survive such treatment without the shattering of their nerves and the loss of their sanity will be healthy, all right, and may produce a race of sturdy brutes. But what about the finer characteristics that we have usually thought of as requiring especially sensitive and delicate minds and a finer organization of nervous systems?

Will the civilization of the future have no more use for them? And without such sensitive mental and physical organization, can there be any real "civilization" at all, or anything more than a herd of human cattle or a colony of human ants?

egg was purchased and fried in a neighboring restaurant, and quickly delivered by a messenger boy on a bicycle. It arrived in good shape and sunny side up.

The girl seems to have understood. The report describes her as "delighted." The stunt obviously was not a practical joke, but a letter in code. Here is a new method of expressing matters of deep significance.

The totalitarian countries need more "subversive and disruptive groups."

THE UNHITCH HIKER!

PARTLY PROTECTED CHILDREN

The "well-of-all-things!" prize should go to a news dispatch from Frankfort-on-the-Main in Germany. On June 12 there opened in that city the thirteenth annual meeting of the International Society for the Protection of Children. Representatives were there from thirty nations, including China and Japan. Forty experts addressed the meetings on the general subject of the protection of children.

Specific topics dealt with protection of the crippled child, the placing of sick children in rural homes, and so on.

What, an amazed reader asks, was said of the bombing and crippling of healthy, normal children in air raids and gas attacks? What of homes broken by war and the slaughter of parents? What of the health of children who suffer from the war-scarcity of necessary goods? What of children denied education and persecuted because of their race?

Perhaps these matters were purposely kept from the discussions of the group as a matter of policy. It might have disrupted the meeting to have the protection of children from war itself mentioned in such a cosmopolitan gathering.

SAVING CHILDREN—FOR WHAT?

The Bureau of the Census reports that the national infant mortality rate for 1937 was the lowest in the history of the bureau. In 38 years that it has been compiling statistics, the total death rate has declined about 36 per cent. That improvement is attributed chiefly to the saving of lives of infants and children. There is not so much reduction of mortality among middle-aged and older people, though that is likely to come with progress in understanding and treatment of heart trouble, cancer and other hitherto baffling diseases.

There are social and economic aspects which need consideration in this connection. If we are going to keep more children alive, we make sure that they will be suitably educated and will have the decent environment and care we know they need.

"Food Dictators Will Rule in England if War Comes." Dictators will probably rule everything everywhere if war comes.

Our last illusions are shattered, as the newspaper columnists start exposing each other.

CHAMBER COMMERCE DIRECTORS MET IN REGULAR SESSION

Routine affairs occupied members of the board of directors of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce Tuesday at their regular semi-monthly session. The board agreed to hold only one regular meeting in July and August.

The board was informed an official from San Antonio would be in Corsicana soon to discuss the airport project with them. The committee named to secure co-operation of city officials in clearing up picnic units at Lake Halbert reported some progress.

F. H. Harvey, Jr., reported on his recent visit to Washington with members of the special delegation from the state supporting Texas' claims for the site of the cotton research laboratory. He stated the group was pleasantly received and in his opinion helped the chances of the state being selected as the laboratory site.

A copy of the 1938 industrial survey of the city of Corsicana was presented to the board of directors. It was prepared for the organization by an industrial engineer through the courtesy of the Texas Power and Light Company.

Mr. Harvey also reported a large sign was being erected on the fairgrounds east of Corsicana, and another sign on Highway 31 was being reworked and repainted. The sign on Highway 75 north of the city will be finished within a short time.

The directors agreed to hold a quarterly membership meeting at the Magnolia lake on July 12, with the new members of the organization to be special guests. A. F. Mitchell reported on the field day and picnic given for the 4-H and FFA boys last week, stating 135 boys attended and good results were obtained and great interest shown.

R. W. Knight, chamber executive, was granted a ten-day vacation about the middle of July. The board was informed actual construction had been started on the first permanent fair unit, and plans were being drawn for the third structure. The board agreed to aid the fair directors in collecting the pledges made for the building of the fair.

Members of the board were invited to attend the joint meeting of the service clubs Wednesday with C. M. Evans as the chief speaker.

Ralph R. Brown's resignation as chairman of the membership committee was accepted, and E. A. Purifoy was named to succeed him. A vote of thanks was given the resigning chairman for his work during the intensive campaign.

MEMORIALS STILL BEING ERECTED TO HEROES OF TEXAS

By WILLIAM E. KEYS
AUSTIN, June 28.—(AP)—It has been two years since Texas officially celebrated the 100th anniversary of its birth but a $5,000,000 program memorializing its heroes, an important part of the Centennial observance, is still in full swing.

It fact, the current year with expenditures approximating $1,000,000 should be one of the most important in the plan because of scheduled completion of major memorial monuments to Texas men and women.

These are part of the program financed by a $3,000,000 state appropriation and $2,000,000 from various federal agencies and will supplement many other items including restoration of the Alamo in San Antonio, construction of museums and replicas of old forts, erection of numerous historical and minor monuments and even transfer of remains of early day heroes to the state cemetery in Austin.

John V. Singleton, chief of the Centennial division of the board of control, believes the monuments mark one of the most important phases of the memorial program. They include the statue of the pioneer woman to be erected at Denton. Incidentally, she'll wear the plain garments of the pioneer period. A suggestion that the statue be nude once stirred a heated statewide controversy.

The statue will cost $25,000 and probably will be erected about Oct. 15.

Other Monuments.
Approximate dates for erection and in some cases unveiling of other monuments, with costs, include:

Peter H. Bell, at Belton, July, $7,500.
James Bonham at Bonham, September, $7,500.
Ben Milam at Cameron, completed, unveiling soon, $14,000.
Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Vanzandt at Canton, August, $7,500.
David Burnett at Clarksville, September, $7,500.
J. Antonio Navarro at Corsicana, July, $7,500.
Sidney Sherman at Galveston, September, $14,000.
Thomas J. Rusk at Henderson, December, $14,000.
Mirabeau B. Lamar at Richmond, unveiling August 16, $14,000.
Moses Austin at San Antonio, September, $14,000.
Ben Milam at San Antonio, July or August, $14,000.
R. F. Henderson at San August, July, $14,000.
Stephen F. Austin at San Felipe, unveiling sometime in fall, $14,000.
R. E. Baylor at Waco, completed, unveiling in August, $14,000.
Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Vanzandt at Canton, August, $7,500.
George C. Childers at Washington-on-the-Brazos, September, $7,500.
Memorial to Fannin's men at Goliad, October or November, $25,000.
Monuments to Crockett at Ozona and LaSalle at Port Lavaca, costing $7,500 and $10,000 respectively, will be erected in December.

Singleton estimated the $100,000 cenotaph honoring Alamo heroes in San Antonio, last remaining large project, should be completed early next year.

The percentages are being lowered each succeeding year, and how thankful we should be. You can remember when there were numbers of typhoid cases every summer, either in your family or within your personal acquaintanceship.

What has cut down this percentage? Nothing but Medical Science working with vaccines and serums, through public education and municipal avenues to purify water supplies, carry off waste and remove the cause of that wasting and fever-racking disease.

AMERICAN FEET

AMERICAN FEET

With the good-looking and comfortable shoes women of this country are able to have, Miss Forbes assures them that their feet should be healthy and attractive always.

There is no reason why any women in this country should not have beautiful feet. The American-made shoe surpasses those made in any other country of the world. They are not only good looking, but they are cut with the idea of comfort and health. This is also the reason why they are sold at the cheaper grades of shoes, and no nature be minimized.

With shoes designed for com-

Many shoes have heels far too high and toes too narrow, while there are enough women who like to see their feet shod in this odd way that thousands of shoes will be perfectly cut but made according to that design. Cheap shoes often flaunt fancy trimming, because there are women who buy them because they will cut out shoes made to fit the foot.

The care of the feet, with such shoes, is an easy matter. Once a week you must skin the feet with a pumice stone, mostly, and the removal of any callous spots, using an emery board. Rubbing the soles with a little oil to keep the skin dry and incidentally all over the toes and joints following the clipping of the nails. You may go as far as you wish, and give yourself a complete pedicure, which is really necessary if you wear evening sandals.

Mrs. H. L.—Trim your hair every few weeks and you will get rid of the split ends in time. It would be impossible to rid yourself of all of them at once, unless you did a great deal of cutting; in fact, you would have to cut until you had clipped the ends from your shortest hair.

Mrs. J.—There is nothing you can do to get rid of the tiny red veins on your legs, as they are broken-down veins close to the skin.

M. F. C.—Compresses of hot salt water laid over your closed eyelids will refresh your eyes after you have tired them from the proof-reading. Cold compresses are more soothing than hot ones to some people, but in most cases heat is what is needed, as it hastens relief when there is congestion.

M. H.—Baldness is a germ disease, so I do not see how it could be hereditary. The germ gets passed on from one head to another, and if caught in time the cure takes place. Left to run for a long time, the hair is thinned out, but even in an advanced state there is the cure, and what is left of the hair may be saved.

'Mrs. G.--You will need a doctor to treat you for the colitis, and you will be advised about your diet.

M. T.—A chocolate cream has 100 calories to it, and the small doughnut has this same amount. Each tablespoonful of ice cream also has 100 calories.

If you have any beauty problems you cannot solve, write for Kina Kent Forbes three "NEW" beauty booklets: (1) "Fifteen Minutes a Day for Beauty," (2) "The Finer Points of Beauty," (3) "Eating And Bathing for Beauty." Send ten cents (in stamps) for EACH booklet, to pay for printing and handling and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope (a.s.a.e.). Address Edna Kent Forbes, c/o this paper.

MISSIONARY AND FAMILY RETURNING SOON ALEPPO, SYRIA

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS DECHERD VISITING RELATIVES IN CORSICANA

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Decherd and their three children are spending a few days in Corsicana in the home of his mother, Mrs. W. M. Wilson, preparatory to returning to their missionary post in Aleppo, Syria, after a year's leave of absence spent in study in New York. They plan to return to New York in July and sail for Syria August 1.

Mr. Decherd teaches in a high school in Aleppo, sponsored by the Presbyterian U. S. A. board, and he and Mrs. Decherd assist in a local church and do itinerant religious work in the city.

Mr. Decherd said this morning that native children attending the high school are apt students and respond quickly to American methods of teaching. Because of the cosmopolitan nature of the city of Aleppo, he said, and because Syria is a French mandate, the native children are good linguists and learn the English language easily.

He said, "Arabic language, which in some ways is similar to Hebrew, is difficult to master. Education is a new experience for the children," he said, "and because of its newness and because they are not as biased as American students, they take their education seriously and are generally speaking very good students. As a group," he continued, "they are more serious-minded than American students, and assume their responsibilities earlier in life."

He said, "The children are the children of the house of the future, and it is fortunate to receive a high school education, and he usually is ready to take his place in the life of his country when he finishes high school."

Most of the household essentials which in America are turned out in factories, are made by hand in Syria. The people are accomplished artisans, and do some very pretty work in wood, silver, and iron, as well as with leather and cloth, he explained.

Syria is an agricultural country, but their methods and implements are the most primitive and their implements are made and pulled by donkeys, oxen or camels. It isn't at all unusual to see fields being cultivated by a camel and a donkey pulling side by side, Mr. Decherd said.

In some respects the climate is similar to that of Texas, and Texas cottonseed is used in preference to the other kinds, he added.

On Desert Edge. Aleppo is on the edge of a "prairie" or desert, which is the home of the colorful, primitive Bedouin tribes. The Bedouins are a sturdy race; they fight among themselves a great deal, but seldom raid nearby cities—although raids on the small villages and towns are frequent and not wholly unheard of, Mr. Decherd said.

Syria is the outlet for Oriental rugs and other Oriental products which are sent there from countries as far away as India. The demand for those things from the Western world ceases, the economic conditions in Syria grow bad. Asked if the depression and recession in America had any effect on Syria, Mr. Decherd answered in the affirmative. He said many persons in Aleppo had invested in American stocks and bonds, and when the market crashed, they lost their money. He said the attitude of economic conditions in the Western world, and especially in the United States are reflected very definitely in Syria.

Advisory Group Plans Expansion Farm Tenant Loans

DALLAS, June 28.—(P)—The state advisory committee of the Federal Security Administration, meeting here yesterday, recommended allocation of $2,118,147 among 55 Texas counties for loans to tenants in a farm purchasing program during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

A prediction of rapid expansion of the program came from E. R. Hanson of Washington, assistant national director, who told the committee the attitude of congress indicated money would be appropriated as rapidly as the FSA demonstrated ability to use it effectively.

C. M. Evans, regional FSA director, said counties recommended for loans must be confirmed by the secretary of agriculture, and that announcement of the counties would probably be made within a week. Two-thirds of 380 tenants would be granted the loans.

Ups and downs of the financial condition of Corsicana residents as well as the municipality are shown in the above recapitulation of the taxes of the city over a period of fourteen years.

The figures were gathered from the annual audit reports and show a record collection of approximately 95 per cent of the assessments in the heyday of Corsicana's oil prosperity in the middle 1920's, tapering down to a low mark of 75.5 per cent two years after the "market collapse." In recent years, the pendulum on collections has shown a gradual tendency upward.

The term "delinquent roll" represents the amount of current taxes unpaid at the end of the paying period on January 31 each year. The "delinquent taxes collected" consists of levies collected for years prior to the year in which they were paid.

An Old Fashioned Reunion of Friends In F. N. Drane Home

Frank N. Drane, who had dreamed of, desired and purposed to have as many of the few remaining friends of the late F. N. Drane as possible in a reunion at his home, Aracady, along with a number of old-time friends and members of these families made his dream come true Saturday and Sunday, June 25 and 26, when 70 or more responded to his kind invitations sent out June 1.

It would be a time of merry-making and a renewal of the former touch of hands and hearts, at Aracady, like that of the long ago, to renew, if not by the old friendships before the final sunset should come to any of them.

It was truly an old fashioned gathering of friends, the nucleus of which dates back to 1880. The happy party began Saturday evening with a dinner party for the early arrivals, which included Mr. and Mrs. Knox Parr, Abeline; Mrs. Ruth Parr Davis and her husband, W. C. Davis, Hillsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jackson and two daughters of Marshall; and J. W. Butler and Mrs. Beth Butler, Galveston. Others present were Mrs. Emy Starr, Dallas; Mrs. E. L. Starr, Dallas; Mrs. Gordon Jester, Merritt drane, Jr.; Mr. Drane and Miss Cicco Damsby.

A three-course dinner was served, all having been seated at the long table which was beautifully appointed, and centered with Shasta daisies and Coxeopsis. Pink gladioli adorned the buffet.

Spend-the-Day Party Sunday. Aracady was the scene of a happy gathering of relatives and friends throughout the day Sunday, and the happiest of all was the genial host, whose every thought was for the happiness and joy of his friends.

This lovely home was lent additional beauty by the artistic arrangement of summer flowers in evidence everywhere, sent in by friends.

At noon, dinner was served the following guests, who were seated at the dining table and eighteen smaller tables arranged in the smaller dining room, the library, conservatory and patio, the large table having been centered with blue delphinium, white stock and feverfew, and the smaller tables with bouquets of mixed summer flowers. Mrs. Hattie Halbert, Roseborough and husband, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jackson and two daughters of Marshall; George C. Gross and Miss Frances Gainer, Dallas; J. W. Butler and Mrs. E. L. Starr, Dallas; Mrs. E. L. Starr, Dallas; Mrs. Gordon Jester, Merritt drane, Jr.; Mr. Drane and Miss Cicco Damsby.

Quite a few from this community have been attending the carnival in Corsicana this week. Mr. H. Wright and daughters, Ida Mae and Dovie, were in East Texas Wednesday.

Mrs. Ida Lynch of Dallas spent Saturday night with her mother, Mrs. E. L. Starr, Dallas.

Miss Vivian Gray of Corsicana spent Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Ellis.
